

CONTENTS

Editorial	Should We Defend Philosophy? -----	1
The 'New Philosophers' and the End of Leftism -----	Peter Dews	2
Forces of Production and Relations of Production in -----	Sean Sayers	12
Socialist Society
Anarchism and Private Property -----	Derek Browne	19

REVIEWS

Books received -----		26
Barash: Sociobiology and Behavior
Clutton-Brock & Harvey: Readings in Sociobiology
Mackenzie: Biological Instincts in Politics
Midgley: Beast and Man
Wilson: On Human Nature -----	Martin Barker	27
Lecourt: The Case of Lysenko -----	Ted Benton	30
Olsen: Karl Marx -----	Pete Stirk	34
Laudan: Progress and its Problems -----	John Krige	35
Smart (eds): Women, Sexuality and Social Control
Byrne: Women and Education -----	Christine Lattek	36
Totman: Social Causes of Illness -----	Jean Grimshaw	37
Goodwin: Social Science and Utopia -----	Martin Barker	37

NEWS AND COMMENT

Obituary of Marcuse -----	Russell Jacoby	39
Politics and the Production of Theoretical Journals -----	Jonathan Ree	40

Edited by: Madan Sarup, Russell Keat, Martin Barker, David Murray, John Krige, Chris Arthur Roy Edgley Mike Erben, Noel Parker, Jonathan Ree, Joe McCarney, Richard Norman, Ted Benton, Rip Bulkeley, Roger Waterhouse, Kate Soper,

Typing by Jo Foster
Sub-heads by Bread n' Roses
Design by David Murray
Printing by Spiderweb
Bookshop distribution by PDC, 27 Clerkenwell Close
London EC1 (tel: 01-251 4976)

THE RADICAL PHILOSOPHY GROUP

The Radical Philosophy Group grew out of a convergence of two currents which had been largely formed by the student movement of the 1960s - on the one hand, discontent, especially among students, with the sterile and complacent philosophy taught in British universities and colleges; on the other hand, a revival of interest in the theoretical work on the left and a recognition of the need to confront the ideology enshrined in orthodox academic disciplines. The Radical Philosophy Group has always contended that these two problems can be tackled together - that philosophical inquiry into fundamental issues must lead to the exposure of conservatism masquerading as formal reason.

Academic philosophy in this country has generally accepted and defended the frame of reference of the dominant bourgeois culture. This culture is supported and mirrored by the elitist isolation, the internal hierarchies and demarcations, of academic institutions. The Radical Philosophy Group therefore works for reforms in courses and assessments for the enlargement of students' control over their education, for the breaking down of barriers between philosophy and other disciplines and between academic institutions and the outside world.

The Group has held several conferences, and local groups have been formed which have organised meetings and agitated on local issues. Radical Philosophy is the magazine of the Radical Philosophy Group, and has come out three times a year since January 1972. It aims to criticise the current state of philosophy in the English-speaking world and to encourage philosophical discussion on the left, and welcomes any contributions which will serve these aims.